

Mrs. Mills' Diary Defends Her Love

the Scriptures that we are forgiven by the Father in heaven."

Graphic Withholds Names

Names of members of the St. John the Evangelist Church, Dr. Hall's pastorate, mentioned by Mrs. Mills in her diary, are withheld by The GRAPHIC until the diary itself becomes a matter of court record, thus making its contents privileged.

Prosecutor Simpson will appear before Judge Kelly in Brooklyn Supreme Court this afternoon, prepared to return to Jersey with Felix Di Martini, the Hall detective, whose extradition he seeks.

After his application for a writ of habeas corpus had been denied yesterday, John McKim Minton, Di Martini's lawyer, filed an appeal for a stay of execution.

With Di Martini safely in Jersey, Senator Simpson will ask the Somerset county grand jury on Saturday for the indictment of the detective and three others, charging them as accessories to the Hall-Mills murder.

A state investigator, not one of the Jersey City detectives; a maid in the Hall home, and Mrs. Minna Clark, friend of Mrs. Mills, will be others against whom indictments may be sought.

Mrs. Henry Stevens today virtually charged Prosecutor Simpson with planting evidence in her Lavallette home, which he raided last Saturday.

"I am interested in knowing most why Senator Simpson went to my house in Lavallette," Mrs. Stevens said.

"Two things have occurred to me: Was it to annoy me personally or was it to plant evidence? I am going to Lavallette Saturday to ascertain if everything is all right."

Denies Presence at Council

Miss Agnes W. Storer of 230 Baldwin St., New Brunswick, organist in Dr. Hall's church, denied a report that she had been present at a Hall family council when those now indicted are said to have perfected a story of the crime to which they would adhere.

That small credence was placed in the story of Everett L. Parker, ex-Trooper Dickman's cell mate in a San Francisco jail, was indicated when Senator Simpson asked that Parker be examined by prison authorities before the state pays his fare East.

Dickman, held at Governors Island, had told Simpson that Parker, eager to return East, merely wants free transportation.

Di Martini in New Fight

Felix di Martini, private detective, accused of being an accessory after the fact in the Hall-Mills murder, remained in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, last night, his writ of habeas corpus, which would have stayed extradition to New Jersey, having been dismissed by Justice Callaghan of the Supreme Court.

Counsel for the detective then obtained a stay from Presiding Justice Kelly of the Appellate Division. This was in the form of an order for the police authorities of New York and New Jersey to show cause why Di Martini should not be released from their custody, and is returnable at 1 o'clock this afternoon.
